MAY SURPRISE PROSECUTION

Beattie Defense Said to Have Uncovered New Witness.

PAUL BEATTIE IS BROUGHT IN

Alleged to Have Been Seen Near Where Discarded Gun Was Found —Sheriff Gill Searches Country for Jurors to Fill Panel.

Chesterfield Court House, Va., Aug. 23.—The trial of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., halted while Sheriff Gill, on the seat of his old democrat wagon, scoured the woods of Chesterfield county for thirty men of the new venire from which four provisional jurors must be drawn to fill the box.

At noon today Judge Walter A. Watson called court and the remainder of the day will be spent in picking the necessary four from Sheriff Gill's catch.

The commonwealth's attorneys have at least sixty witnesses, many of them of minor importance, to take their turn on the witness stand, just how many the defense will call Beattie's lawyers have not revealed. Nor will they say whether or not the prisoner will take the stand in his own behalf.

Richmond jurists who have followed the events that bring Beattie to the bar to fight for his life, prophesy that his lawyers will not dare to allow him to be laid open to the cross-examination of the prosecution.

The meanderings of Sheriff Gill may be fraught with a danger to Beattie which only old settlers of Chesterfield county can appreciate. If the sheriff directs his old democrat wagon into the country of the yellow jackets and serves summoneses to veniremen there, Beattie's lawyers will be forced to use all their stock of challenges when these simple folk of homespun come into court to answer to questions touching their fitness to serve.

How the name yellow jackets was first applied to this little group of hard working, hard praying covenanters, who live in piney woods, over in the direction of Petersburg, none but the elders of Chesterfield remember. But it is a fact that away off there in the corner of the forest, away from the influences of the city and of present day life, these descendants of the austere Scotch fighters live a life apart. Their code knows no dishonor, no violence, no crime. They rarely have recourse to the courts themselves, and then only in civil suits.

It was rumored that one of the surprises which the lawyers for the defense have been preparing lies in the uncovering of a witness who will swear that he saw Paul Beattie, the cousin of the accused and the one who has confessed having purchased the shotgun with which the murder was done, standing near the Belt line railroad tracks on the night of the murder not far from the spot where detectives afterward discovered the discarded gun.

QUIET AS TO DROPPING MEN

U. P. and S. P. Officials Fail to Explain the Discharge of Thousands.

New York, Aug. 23.—Officials of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific railroads were loath to talk of the dropping of several thousand men from their payrolls. Officials of the Rock Island, the Northern Pacific and Atchison railroads indicate that they will not adopt similar methods of retrenchment.

It is generally believed here that the retrenchment policy will be extended to all lines of the Harriman system.

COUNCIL TO DECIDE BRIDGE MATTER THIS EVENING

One of the matters which will come up for discussion at the adjourned meeting of the Council this evening will be that of transferring the bridge contract with Carpenter and Anderson, bridge contractors of Grand Rapids, to Contractor Bristol of the same place. It seems that during the delay of waiting for the decision of the Ypsilanti Council, Carpenter and Anderson took a $65,000 sewer contract for Grand Rapids and will not be able to begin the work on the Congress street bridge this summer as had been expected. They have therefore asked to transfer their contract in all its details to Contractor Bristol, formerly bridge builder for the Pere Marquette railroad.

MRS. CLEVELAND A FIRE FIGHTER

Takes Pail and Labors to Save Her Dwelling.

CARETAKER SEVERELY BURNED

Flames Start with Explosion in Gas House and Threaten Cleveland Dwelling, but Are Extinguished After Battle.

Meredith, N. H., Aug. 23.—Friends of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, who is spending the summer at her country home here, are congratulating her on the bravery which she exercised in fighting a fire.

The flames were in a gas house a few feet from her house, but she saved her property from destruction. Although the fire was extinguished before it reached the Cleveland home, William O. Cook, caretaker of the property, was severely burned and it is feared that he may die.

The cause of the fire has not yet been explained, but it is believed to have been started by an explosion in the gas house. Cook was within ten feet of the building when the explosion occurred and it knocked him over

The flames that shot out set his clothing on fire, but he managed to extinguish them. The more serious burns from which he is suffering were inflicted upon him after he had rushed back in the gas house to fight the flames. Mrs. Cleveland, who had been aroused by the sound of the explosion, helped him in the fight, throwing many pails of water upon the flames. Her children also took a hand in the work by establishing a water pail relay from their house to the gas house.

When Cook's clothing took fire the second time, Mrs. Cleveland threw a pail of water over him and dragged him away from the flames. Neighbors had been attracted to the scene by this time, and under her direction they managed to get the fire under control before it spread to the Cleveland dwelling.

DYNAMITE NEW HOUSE

Explosion in Kansas City Does about $500 Damage.

Home of R. J. Thorne, General Manager of Montgomery Ward & Co., Built by Non-Union Labor.

Kansas City, Aug. 23.—Dynamiters attempted to blow up the new $70,000 house which Robert J. Thorne, general manager of Montgomery Ward & Co., is building at Fifty-Seventh street and the state line. The dynamite was placed in the center of the reception hall and exploded.

The concrete floors of the second and third stories fell down, and the walls on the sides of the reception hall were damaged. The whole damage amounted to about $500, according to Mr. Whittaker, foreman in charge of the work. Non-union men were employed on the new house exclusively, but Whittaker declares he did not believe union men had anything to do with the explosion. He was inclined to believe that it was done by some one who had a personal grudge against Mr. Thorne.

An attempt was made to blow up the new warehouse of Montgomery Ward & Co. the night of Aug. 9 last year. Dynamite was placed against one of the concrete pillars of the southeast part of the building. At the time of the explosion the company was employing non-union men on its new building.

LAKE BOAT BURNS TO WATER

Several Hundred in Jeopardy When Hammond Vessel Meets Disaster.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 23.—More than 250 women and children excursionists were thrown into a panic and their lives endangered when the Tourist, a new passenger boat on the Calumet river, was burned to the water's edge while running from Hammond to Riverdale, Ind.

The boat was beached to save its passengers. Fire started in the hold of the boat near the engine room while the craft was in midstream. Flames pouring out of the portholes precipitated a panic among the passengers, who deserted cabins and the lower portions of the boat and gathered on the upper deck. Heat had blistered the upper deck before the captain ordered the pilot to beach the boat. Many of the passengers jumped overboard into shallow water and waded ashore. A number were cut and bruised.

100 PERISH IN MEXICO HORROR

Express Train on National Railway Plunges Into River.

EVERY PERSON ABOARD LOST

Divers Try to Rescue Bodies Where Cars Fell Because Flood Razed Bridge—Not a Survivor Found.

Mexico City, Aug. 23.—Divers began exploring the depths of the swollen Amacusac river in an effort to recover the bodies of 100 or more passengers, including several Americans, who were drowned when an express train on the National railroad plunged into the water where the bridge had been washed away.

First efforts at recovering the bodies indicated that the exact number of dead might never become known. Some of the bodies had been carried down stream by the swift current.

Every person aboard the train perished. Not even a railway employe aboard discoverd the danger ahead in time to jump and escape death in the stream.

The river had been swollen by a cloudburst and the unprecedented flood had washed away the railway bridge. Ignorant of the danger ahead, the driver of the ill-fated train was speeding along on schedule time. Whether he saw the chasm in front when he reached the river bank can only be gussed.

No one in the vicinity saw the train slow up as if in obedience to application of the emergency brakes. The locomotive leaped forward at the river bank just as it ordinarily shot on the bridge. Then it lunged into the water, dragging along the coaches.

A Red Cross relief train arrived at the scene at night, but there was nothing for the nurses to do. Not a survivor of the wreck could be found, and it was believed all the passengers and crew of the train perished.

EXTRA SESSION IS ECONOMICAL

Appropriates Unprecedentedly Small Sum of Money.

NO NEW JOBS ARE CREATED

Closing Scenes in Both Houses Very Tame—Presidents' Veto of Cotton Bill Received and Referred to Committee.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The session of congress which has just ended was one of the most economical in the history of the government, according to a statement made on the floor of the house by Representative John Fitzgerald of New York, chairman of the house committee on appropriations.

Mr. Fitzgerald declared that no session of congress has ever run for so long a period and appropriated so small a sum of money. He called attention to the fact that no new jobs have been created under Democratic auspices and sixty-five salaried positions have been abolished and more than $300,000 saved to the government annually.

The closing scenes in both the senate and the house were the tamest that have been witnessed in Washington in many years. There was less than a quorum left in both houses, but nobody thought of raising a point of order. All wished to escape from the capitol, and the sooner the better. The house usually kicks up its heels and cavorts at the get-away, but there was only a perfunctory round of applause and a few weak cheers.

Both houses had the business of the session pretty well disposed of when they met at noon under a joint agreement to put up the shutters at 3 o'clock. The receipt of the president's message vetoing the cotton bill, the last of the Democratic tariff revision measures, was practically the only important business before congress. It had been expected that the president would send in his veto message as soon as the house came together at noon. But as the hands of the clock approached 2 and no word had been received, disquieting rumors arose.

It was learned that the president's message had been revised at a special cabinet meeting in the morning and had been sent back to the government printer. Secretary Hilles and Attorney General Wickersham were both in the composing room of the printing establishment, the former hanging over the typesetting machines, urging haste, and the latter serving as proof reader. By an extraordinary effort the message was turned out at shortly after 2 o'clock and hurried to the house.

The Democrats made no attempt to pass the cotton bill over the president's veto, Representative Underwood, the majority floor leader, contenting himself with remarking that the Democracy did not have the necessary two-thirds strength, and simply moving that the veto document be referred to the ways and means committee, where it will lie until the regular session next December.

M. C. Improvements May Help Ypsilanti

Plans are under way at the present time for the merger into a single corporation of the many companies which now make up the New York Central system. The first step will be the merger of the New York state lines after which improvements in other lines will follow. It is understood that this will include contemplated improvements at Ypsilanti which will be the end of the steam division and will be the home of many railroad men, both on the steam and electric lines. The purpose is mainly for better financing of the railroad business.

STOP IN YPSILANTI COSTS JACKSON MAN $4.65 AND NIGHT IN JAIL

James Moore, a paper hanger of Jackson, was arrested Tuesday afternoon on a charge of drunkenness. He was arraigned before the local justice this morning and pleaded guilty. On payment of costs, $4.65, he was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

More claimed to have been spending his vacation in Detroit and just stopped off in Ypsilanti on his way home. The walks in Ypsilanti are generally conceded to be as wide as most sidewalks in towns of this size but they were not wide enough for him.

NOTICE.

Owing to death in my family I shall be unable to keep appointments in Ypsilanti this week. Watch this paper for later announcement of next visit. M. F. STEIN, Optician.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 23, 1911

The suggestion of W. H. Sweet that Ypsilanti interest itself in the good roads movement in some specific way is timely. Wayne county is building a magnificent road from Detroit out this way. It will probably come up to the Washtenaw county line, which means that there will be only a comparatively short strip to bring it to the very doors of Ypsilanti. The value of this road to Ypsilanti will be large. We believe that the county of Washtenaw ought not to lag too far behind the county of Wayne in building this great old thoroughfare, which has extended from Detroit to Chicago well as far as it goes in this country. And the natural place to begin is where Wayne county leaves off, provided of course Wayne county leaves off at the county line, separating Wayne from Washtenaw.

There is another piece of road that is very rough, commencing at the city limits and extending west along the electric line pretty much all the way to Cole Brothers' farm, just this side of the Lake Shore crossing. A comparatively few loads of gravel, judiciously distributed so as to fill up the holes and crown up the roads, would put this in good shape. But it is very rough now and it has been for years, apparently left just as the loads of gravel were dumped off the wagons on which they came. Whenever it rains there are just as many mudholes to be gone through.

Thousands of automobiles pass over this road every summer and we are judged by what we permit. The citizens of Ypsilanti—the Ypsilanti Industrial association, if you please, through an appropriate committee,—should cooperate with the highway commissioners having supervision over the roads leading into Ypsilanti in seeing to it that these approaches to our city are kept in good shape. We feel sure these comissioners will be pleased to cooperate because it is mutually to the interests of the city that the farmers come to the city and it is to their interest that they haul their produce to the city over good roads. The question in the last analysis is really one of economics more than of comfort and pleasure. The cost of hauling a load to market is measured by the worst piece of road between the home of him who is to haul the load and the market to which it is to be hauled. He may have five miles of excellent road, and one-half mile of very bad road. The size of the load he can haul therefore is measured by the condition of the half-mile of bad roads, so that everybody who has to pass over the five miles of road is interested imediately in the condition of that half-mile of poor road.

"WHAT IS SOCIALISM?"

The Socialist argues, "The industrial administration, owning the means of production and distribution, would be in a position to distribute equally the benefits of its power. In the regulation of the land, collective farming would be fostered; good farmland would be so conserved that the poorer grade need not be used; bad land would be irrigated and fertilized, and there would be exercised a jealous care of those resources which even now enable the United states to export enough food-stuffs to feed another large nation. The same conditions would exist in the organization of industries. There the benefits of combination, as already exemplified by the Trusts, would be developed to their greatest capacity; the hours of work would be shortened, Benjamin Franklin's estimate was that four hours' daily labor by every able-bodied adult would more than provide for human needs), the productive forces of the individual workers would be increased, waste would be eliminated, and—though this last is not a Trust-taught lesson—the trades-unions would be given administrative powers in the various administrative labor.

Work, Wages and the Individual.

"Work would be guaranteed to each and exacted from all. It is a fact already demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Socialist that the demand for labor increases with the proper organization and combination of industries, and this, if carried to its logical conclusion, would probably permit the worker to choose only the work for which he was best fitted and in which he was, therefore, the most interested. Wages, finally, whether or not by some modification of the present monetary system, would—to repeat—represent value created rather than the lowest price of living, and,—the idler being left to starve and labor required of all able to perform it,—the state would become the guardian, not in charity, but in justice, of the aged and the infirm. For the rest, the man that chose to hoard his earnings might hoard them, and he that wanted to waste might waste them; neither could, at all events, bequeath accumulated wealth, and, credit being wholly in the hands of the government, usury would of necessity disappear.

"These things being so, the Socialist argues, it can hardly be said that the Cooperative Commonwealth would crush the individual. Rather, it would, by providing him with shorter working hours, furnish him with the opportunity of wider self-development, and the state, far from hampering the individual, would become his protector. There would be assured to him freedom of movement, compensation for false arrest, personal privacy, liberty of dress and speech, and perfect freedom in all matters of religion, philosophy, science and art.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Knocking the Head Trick.

Do you desire me, ladies, to teach you my secret for making impromptu verses? It is to rub your forehead well, not with the hand as Horace did of old, but by giving your head some good sound blows against the wall. Then proceed to knock your head three or four times against a door and put your hand to your forehead as if to deaden the pain produced by the violence of the blows. But you must do something more than merely touch the door with your head. At the same moment that you make the movements as if knocking yourself, you ward off the blow by the aid of the left hand held to the door about the spot which you appear to strike, while the closed right hand, concealed from the audience, strikes on the other side of the door.

The correspondence of the movements of the head with the noise of the blows given by the clinched fist produces a perfect illusion on the minds of the spectators.

Frolickers of the Sea.

The merry dolphins have a peculiar murmuring cry, and when the sailors hear it they say the dolphins are talking together. Of all the creatures of the sea these show the greatest exuberance of animal mirth. Often they are seen by ships' passengers in the Mediterranean and the northern Atlantic ocean frolicking and leaping from the surface of the sea with a thousand graceful motions. Now they leap with curved bodies many feet into the air, then they drag through the waves rapidly, leaving a slender wake of whitening foam under the water. The dolphin is not more than six or eight feet long. The body tapers toward the tail, which is shaped like a crescent. It has a beak about six inches long and a crescent shaped blowhole, with horns turned backward. It is white on the back, grayish on the sides and white beneath.

About the Moon.

The bright side of the moon always is turned toward the sun whether the sun is visible to us or not. So we should expect that if the moon is less than full a line joining the center of the moon and the center of her illuminated edge would always point toward the sun while the cusps or horns of the moon in her first or last quarter would point away from the sun. But if we come to watch the moon we shall find that the position of the cusps often is different from what we had expected. For instance, the sun may be well below the horizon, yet the horns may be turned a little downward and the center of the bright edge a little upward.

Dear Sir—I am very much pleased to tell you that your medicine has effected what no other medicine has done, a cure. I have had rheumatism for forty years, suffered terrible pain, could not put one leg over the other without taking hold and lifting. My legs today are just about as good as they were when I was twenty-five. I certainly recommend it to every sufferer from rheumatism. Yours,

JOSEPH BEST,

GAME GOES TO VISITORS ON QUESTIONABLE DECISION

RULES THAT SHOULD HAVE CHANGED THE SCORE ON TUESDAY

Rule 37. Section 1. A block is a batted or thrown ball that is touched, stopped or handled by a person not engaged in the game.

Section 3. If the person not engaged in the game should retain possession of a blocked ball, or throw or kick it beyond the reach of the fielders, the umpire shall call "Time" and require each base-runner to stop at the base last touched by him until the ball be returned to the pitcher in his position and the umpire shall have called "Play."

Despite the fact that the score allowed in the game played between the Ypsilanti City and the Buffalo Pullman baseball teams on the Normal grounds Tuesday afternoon was chalked up on the score board and entered in the score books four and two in favor of the visitors, the local men should be credited with at least an equal score.

The visitors scored a scratch run in the seventh when a high fly hit by Hunter bounded through the branches of a tree in right field allowing him time to cross the plate before Shaffer was able to get the ball into play. The territory evidently looked good to other members of the team for in the next inning when two bases had been filled Schrang took occasion to line a fast one in the same direction. Shaeffer went after it, of course, but a spectator, to be either accommodating or funny, fielded the stray sphere safely over Shaeffer's head and back into the field. It was recovered and pressed into play as soon as possible but not before three men had crossed the plate. No rule book chanced to be at hand and the umpire evidently decided that the visitors had worked hard and were entitled to their scores and all three were chalked up accordingly. Later, however, in the presence of a number of players from both teams he consulted a rule book and found that the runners should have been stopped when the ball was thrown out of the fielder's reach. If he had acted accordingly at the time, only one run would have been allowed, instead of three in that inning and although the game cannot be denied the visitors now, it is easy to see how the outcome might have been materially affected if a correct decision had been rendered.

The two runs for Ypsilanti were made by Hammerschmidt on Carl Stimpson's sacrifice in the eighth and by Earl Stimpson on a hit by Buland who batted for Robtoy in the ninth.

A feature of the game was Bell's pitching when on two occasions he closed an inning with three men on bases.

The game was enjoyed by a good crowd of fans and was no doubt the best that has been played in Ypsilanti this season. The Buffalo men were clean players and with the exception of the unfortunate occurrance in the eighth inning every feature of the game was good.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Rapid Increase of Life.

As illustrating the enormous powers of reproductive increase in the vegetable world, the case of a common weed, the Sisymbrium Sophia, may be cited. This weed produces three-quarters of a million seeds, and these, if they all grew and multiplied, would in three years cover the whole land surface of the globe. Darwin calculated that the slowest breeding of all animals, the elephant, would in 750 years, from a single pair, produce 19,000,000 individuals. Rabbits would, from a single pair, produce 1,000,000 individuals in four or five years.

Chess-Playing Automatons.

There have been several automaton chess players, but it should not be necessary to say that they were all worked by the man behind the machine, or rather, within or under the machine. At the great fair held in the Crystal Palace, in London, in 1851, an automaton played the game beautifully; and so early as 1753 Baron Von Kempelen of Hungary invented an audroid that was the marvel and wonder of the time. Von Kempelen went all over Europe with his "Turk."

Good Liver Remedy Free

When you suffer from any form of indigestion it is always well to take something for the liver, as usually the trouble lies there. If you are bilious, have a bloaty feeling after eating, if you belch, if your skin is yellowish you may be sure it is liver trouble.

What you need is something to stir up the liver, to arouse the gastric juices so that they will aid in the digestion of your food. A very good remedy for this, and one highly recommended by those who have used it, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can obtain of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. But if you have any doubt about its merits, and would prefer to try it first, send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly send you a free sample bottle.

Thousands of people first learned of this remarkable cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles through a free sample. Mrs. Frank Lilly of Plainview, Ill., sent for one and it cured her and she is open in saying that she will never take pills or strong cathartics again, as Syrup Pepsin acts so mildly. Mr. W. L. Bryant, the Postmaster at Sardis, Tenn., says he will never be without it again. No sick person can afford to ignore a remedy so highly endorsed as this. It is good for all the family from infancy to old age, because it is mild, free from griping and yet promptly effective. Furthermore, results are absolutely guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.
